

Habitat Williamson-Maury Board Member

Jason Hale

Jason Hale grew up just around the corner in rural Rutherford county. He is proud to be a 7th generation Tennessean, although his life has taken him around the country to Texas, Ohio, and Virginia. He is currently the VP of Risk & General Counsel at Lee Company, which he joined in 2017 after serving as Assistant Attorney General for the state of Tennessee and as an executive at a health care company. An expert in business and operation matters, legal affairs, and strategic initiatives, Jason is the first General Counsel in the company's history.

Jason considers himself to be a "Habitat lifer". He has been involved with Habitat for Humanity around the country for over 20 years, including participating in Houston's SuperBUILD project with the NFL for Super Bowl XXXVIII, in which they built 38 homes in 38 days.

After volunteering with Habitat, Jason believed in our mission so much that he wanted to be further involved as a board member. He is passionate about leading Habitat and helping provide a broader solution for affordable housing. Jason recognizes the particular challenge that Habitat for Humanity Williamson-Maury faces due to the cost of real estate in Middle Tennessee. His strategic vision allows him to foresee challenges that are in the future for HFHWM and affordable housing, as well as develop unique strategies to continue our mission. He is not afraid to take chances and go in new directions.

Jason brings his construction expertise to our board. He comes from a construction family and got his start by working in labor before moving into an executive role. He also served as the president of the Tennessee Sub-Contractor Association. His wide range of abilities and knowledge is a positive addition to the board.
