

Future Homeowner Yolanda Johnson

Habitat for Humanity Williamson-Maury is happy to introduce Yolanda Johnson and her daughters Jamaria (17), Jacariyah (6), Jaceriah (6), Jamaya (4), and Faith (2) to the Homeownership Program.

Miss Johnson was raised in Franklin by her grandmother who she believes has been “hands down the greatest influence” in her life.

“I have lived here my entire life, and when I heard that Habitat was building in Williamson County, I almost cried. I immediately submitted an application. I want to raise my daughters around my family. With the rising prices in the area, that was slowly becoming less of an option. I don’t want to sacrifice the safety of my girls for lower rent. I’m so grateful that Habitat has selected to work with me, and we are looking forward to having a place that we can call home.”

Ms. Johnson is very active in her church, Little Harper Primitive Baptist. Additionally, she enjoys walking in the park and being outdoors. She compares the personality of her daughters to a box of crayons. “They all have unique skills and talents similar to how a box of Crayolas has different colors. Their diverse personalities paint the perfect picture. I’m hoping that having a stable home will help my girls go after their dreams.”

Yolanda is excited to get to know her new neighbors and can’t wait to have a yard. She believes that the most challenging part of the Homeownership Program will be building on the homes; however, she’s excited to learn new things.

Yolanda Johnson’s home build will begin in the fall of 2019 in the Willow Crest Subdivision in Fairview, TN.
